nightfall. There beamed the light of intellect; and o'er all Her countenance, deeply there laid portrayed Expression calm yet powerful, and withal Mysteriously lovely. The display Of so mach beauty rivetted my looks; And as I gazed, I thought, how sad it was So fair a being should be born to die: That as the daisy born amidst the grain. Is spared not by the reaper's scythe, so Death In his great harvest field, would cut her down, Although all others she so far excelled. Thus as I thought, the smile that played around Her ruby lips, showed she prepared to speak. With anxious ear, I listened; thus she said: Hallo, thar, stranger; ef you see me agin I hope you'll know me! The vision fled:

"Cut stick for home!" ASTRONOMICAL THEORY.

My imagination with its wings clipped, sank

Unto the earth; and your most humble servant,

It is well known that a distinguished European astronomer has advanced the theory that Aleyone, the principal star in the group Pleiades, now occupies the centre of gravity, and is at present the sun about which the universe of stars composing our astral system, are all revolving. Admitting the truth of this theory, it leads to some of the most astonishing results. The known parallax of certain fixed stars gives to us an approximate of the parallax of Alcyon, and reveals to us the distance of the grand centre. Such is the enormous interval separating the sun from the central star about which it is assumed to perform its-mighty revolutions, that the light from Alcyone requires a period of 537 years to traverse the distance. And if we are to rely on the angular motion of the sun and system, as already determined, at the end of 18,200,000 years, this great luminary, with all its planets, satellites, and comets, will have completed one revolution around its grand centre.

The origin of the pugilistic phrase "lam," is discovered in the following passage

"In short, the tumult thickened, and the word began to pass among the more desperate, 'Lamb them, lads; lamb them,' a cant phrase of the ime, derived from the fate DAINT BRUSHES.—We have just received of Dr. Lambe, an astrologer and quack, per Schr A. flicted, especially to the young, and they have resolved to devote themselves, with renewed zeal, to this very important but much despised cause. Just published by the Association, a Report on Spermatorrhora, or Seminal Weakness, by the Consulting Surgeon, which will be sent by mail, (in a sealed letter envelope,) free of charge, on receipt of two stamps for postage.
